Wow,

I remember the first time you mentioned Anna and the first thing I thought was, her work was interesting. I checked her blog and I would definitely want to meet her! I will contact her and then see how it is going to work out. I really appreciate and am excited about the part you are playing in this whole "new possibilities" for all of us.

I am thinking of renting a workplace for my projects and also somewhere that I can show my photography and also kind of socializing place for all the people that I meet on my path, and I would definitely would like to host you as one of an essential node of the bigger universe.

Thanks for all the links and information , I will check them out and I will see you soon!

Take care,

Kata

Hi Richard,

Definitely you can use my words, what I would say more would be like this and you have all the right to smooth it in grammar wise or put it in a better way.

I believe in our paths there are some people - or beings I should say - that would teach us or guide us, for letting us to get a better understanding we need at that time or see something we have not realized before. It does not happen too often. When it happens it is very empowering and valuable. It takes a dedication and strength of the being's part to do this. So I appreciate that I have met you, and definitely I am going to make to the next meetings to share more.

See you soon,

Kata
